The broken star of my existence dwells Beneath the fragrant shade of a rosy bower; Her head she reposes on a billow of roses, As a vigil of love she keeps for me each hour.

Oh I had I a bird's swift wing, Away to her hower I'd hie; And a song of fove I would sing.

And we then would cears to sigh. With a sillion cord of love, More strong than any post's

Forble song, I would hind her heart With fetters strong ; And to my mountain home

My love-my bride-We would comm together. And you would be the theme Of many a dream, As in the stream Of time we would sail In part tegether.

Perils of Navigation.

The advantages of this contract need scarcely be urged upon wealthy menor merchants, for they rarely neglect it, and if they do, fires leave them other resources. It is especially valuable to laboring men, mechanics, and others of moderate menas—who, perhaps have little else than a home and its contents in the world.

These should never neglect to insure; fire which may visit them at any hour, would leave them homeless, and with no capital but their fiber, to be fire again the struggle of life, and years of toil and watching must pass before they can regain what they have lost, if indeed it is over done.

To such, insurance is a daty. If the individual is worth little, the expense is triding, and by investing a few dollars he is safe. If he is overtaken by misfortune, and his all laid in ashes, he receives a recompense in a cash capital equal to his loss, and may soon restore what has been destroyed.
